A2iA Named Among the 100 Companies that Matter in Knowledge Management for 2009

Worldwide leading developer of cursive extraction and recognition software honored for second consecutive year.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23, 2009 – A2iA, a leading provider of tools for document analysis and handwritten data extraction, announced today that KMWorld has named A2iA among the 100 Companies that Matter in Knowledge Management for 2009. Recognized on this prestigious list for the second consecutive year, A2iA’s proprietary toolkits are proven to help paper-intensive industries reduce data-entry costs and improve business process automation.

“This year’s list includes companies that embrace the spirit of both adaptability and innovation,” said Hugh McKellar, Editor-in-Chief of KMWorld. “A2iA’s technology exhibits both of these qualities and A2iA demonstrates this by continuing to improving their recognition engines based on the changing requirements of today’s users.”

Being named to this coveted list by KM practitioners, theorists, analysts, vendors and their customers and colleagues reflects A2iA’s leadership in the industry for nearly 20 years.

“We are proud to be recognized by our industry colleagues as a market leader,” said Jean-Louis Fages, A2iA President and Chairman of the Board. “This year marks the 10-year anniversary of A2iA’s North and Latin American subsidiary, and we are honored to be acknowledged for our long-standing dedication and innovative solutions.”

Thousands of end-users worldwide utilize A2iA’s proprietary technology to process documents automatically in the payment, mail, and forms processing markets. Proven to reduce data-entry costs and improve workflow automation, these award-winning toolkits are available in 23-country versions and 6-languages.
