A2iA Named Among the KMWorld 100 Companies that Matter in Knowledge Management for the Third Consecutive Year

A2iA honored for its development of innovative solutions that solve complex business issues.

NEW YORK, February 23, 2010 – A2iA, the worldwide leading developer of handwritten and machine printed text recognition, information extraction and intelligent classification of paper documents, announced today that KMWorld named A2iA among the 100 Companies that Matter in Knowledge Management for 2010. This marks the third consecutive year that KM practitioners, theorists, analysts, vendors and their customers and colleagues have voted A2iA to this list for developing innovative solutions that solve complex business issues.

"In today's knowledge economy, A2iA does more than simply throw sophisticated technology at its customers, it provides real solutions through inspired planning and execution throughout the entire constituency chain," says Hugh McKellar KMWorld editor in chief.

Since its founding in 1991, A2iA has dedicated itself to developing tools that extract data from handwritten and unstructured documents, making previously inaccessible information available to data management organizations and solution providers. Today, A2iA's award-winning technology helps digitize handwritten information and classify complex documents in paper-intensive industries such as healthcare, insurance, banking and finance, government, telecommunications, and mailrooms.

About KMWorld
